Destined for Gold: Baby Born at 08:08 a.m. on 08/08/08

Fountain Valley, CA – August 8, 2008 – When Caroline and Mark Winnik scheduled a delivery for August 8, 2008, it was because they wanted to be sure that Caroline’s OB/Gyn, Dr. Cynthia Cork, a specialist affiliated with Fountain Valley Regional Hospital, would be available. Dr. Cork had delivered their first child, a daughter, four years earlier at Fountain Valley Regional Hospital also.

Although the Winniks were aware that the number 8 was lucky to the Asian community because it signified prosperity, it was not a factor in choosing their delivery date. The birth of their son was going to be a blessing regardless.

As luck would have it, their son Adin, was born at exactly 08:08 a.m. on Friday, August 8, 2008, a healthy 10 pounds and 4 oz. The parents, Dr. Cork and Labor and Delivery Nurses Selene Manibuzan and Laura Hiller couldn’t have been prouder. In fact, the whole nursing unit was excited for the “lucky” baby. Adin’s father Mark, appreciating the cultural significance of his son’s delivery time, jokingly quipped, “Maybe we should spell Adin’s name as ‘Eightin’.”

The couple plans to watch the Olympic Games Opening Ceremony tonight, which begins at 8:08 p.m. Their son may be destined for gold in the future, but the couple couldn’t be happier with Adin just being who he is today.
